

DAD 220 Quantigration RMA Entity Relationship Diagram

The database you are building is based on this diagram. Each of these tables represents an entity. Each entity contains attributes (fields). Attributes have data types, and some are identified as primary or foreign keys. The ERD is the blueprint for building your relational database.

